resources required, etc.

The greater the significance, the higher the weighting factor should be. (However, the sum of all of these must equal 100.) Enter the weighting for each of your identified risks or costs in the column titled "weight factor."

One helpful way of coming up with these weight factors is to begin by labeling each of your cost/risk factors, such as "A / B / C" or "major / moderate / minor." Once that has been done, it is easier to start giving relative numerical weightings.

Estimate on a scale of 0-5 the likelihood of each cost or risk occurring if an investment is not made in EMR, with 5 being "highly likely" and 0 being "highly unlikely." Enter this number in the column labeled "rating" under the heading "without EMR." Do this for each cost item you have listed. If you are doing this on the electronic spreadsheet, this likelihood score will be automatically multiplied by the weighting factors you already determined above, filling in the column under the heading "score."

If you are doing this exercise manually, simply multiply the two numbers and enter the product in the appropriate cell.

Do the same for the column that assumes you do invest in EMR. An important point to note here is that you should evaluate the cost or risk associated exclusively with EMR. For example, if you were going to upgrade your computer network regardless of whether or not you implemented EMR, you would not associate that network expense with the EMR decision, unless the network requirement was greater because of the EMR.

Add the numbers in each of the two "score" columns. The totals are the relative costs of not investing, and investing, respectively. (This will happen automatically in the Excel spreadsheet.) Not investing in EMR has a total cost of 40, based upon our assumptions. The cost of investing in EMR is 378.

Repeat the same process for estimating your benefits. Be careful in your word choice for these benefit metrics. They should be framed in the language of a benefit (such as "ability to reduce transcription costs") as opposed to simply being labeled "transcription costs." This is important, because you will ultimately be comparing these benefits with costs, and if your language regarding benefits is not framed appropriately, it can easily lead to misleading estimates in the "rating" column.

When you have completed the estimates for both scenarios (with EMR and without EMR), compare your totals; the option with the highest overall score will be your best choice.

As shown in our example, not investing has a net total of -12. Investing in EMR has a net total of 37. Again, our figures are merely illustrative, based upon the assumptions we made explicit and our weighting and rating estimates. Those of your clinic or enterprise will vary with your assumptions.

*T*hank you for sharing

Congratulations on creating your own clinical content and sharing it with other "Best Practices." To submit your content and bio, simply follow the directions below.

Encounter Forms

Please TEST to make sure the Encounter Form(s) is accurate, easy to use, and looks nice. Check the following:

- Check all items which are connected to information from the Logician database. Make sure that the Observation term you connected is the Observation term you wanted, the Clinical List connections are correct, and the data display items show the data you expect.
- Include the Form Name as the first Heading.
- Please make sure the text translation looks right for every item and combination of items. This includes spacing and punctuation.
- Include all files when submitting. This includes all file extensions of .fd, .fs, .ckt, .lst, .efm, .ef2-? (the number of pages in your form), .xlt, and .pef and .txt. Make sure that files are zipped before sending. (see below)
- Check that any flowsheet view path is correct and complete. Make sure the flowsheet view path uses back slashes (\) and not forward slashes (/).

Text Templates, Letters, and Patient Handouts

- Please make sure the text note templates can be loaded into Logician and into the correct folders
- All grammar, spelling, and punctuation should be accurate
- Check to be sure the note template loads into the chart document correctly, and can be read without compiler errors
- Please make sure that data symbols which are used in the note template are "pulled" accurately into the note template

Crystal Reports

- To ensure that the report is outputting correct data please check that the fields in the report match the desired fields. This can be done by reading the field descriptions in the Logician Data Schema manual.
- Enter patients in your Network Training (Oracle) version of Logician to ensure an adequate patient population for testing your report. Be sure to include data that will test all conditions, including the boundary conditions in your report.
- Test your report in Network Training (Oracle) then in your real patient database.
- After both tests, have another user check the output against the actual data in Logician to verify that you're getting the data that you think you are.

How to Submit

When submitting your content, please include answers to the questions below. This information will be posted to the KnowledgeBank with your content. Visitors to the site will be able to view this information from the item page.

- Who authored this content?
- What is the name of the office/clinic where the content is being used?
- If this office/clinic is part of an integrated delivery system (IDS), what is the name of the IDS?
- What type of content are you submitting, e.g., Encounter Form, Note Template, Crystal Report, Patient Letter or Handout
- What is the purpose of the clinical content e.g. "to be used with sprained ankle visits". The more information the better.
- Please submit some information about the author such as a professional bio, type of practice, hobbies, etc
- Please submit your content in a zipped or compressed format. This keeps the files from becoming scrambled while in transit. WinZip is a good utility - very simple to use. There is a version available to download via the Web.
- Please mail your content and biography to:
knowbank@medicallogic.com
- We will acknowledge your submittal within 3 working days
